ISSUE 584 Saturday 28th August 2021

Covid-19, otherwise known as Coronavirus, has impacted the way we live. The issues surrounding the impact of this virus are evolving on a day-to-day basis. Yes, things will change but we will continue to evolve with these new challenges.

As a community member we have taken extra precautionary measures within our office to ensure safety of our employees, consultants, contractors and any visiting patrons. We are currently working from home but are still here to assist.

At Crown Property Group Australia, we are thinking of all of those impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic, and we appreciate the healthcare workers, local communities, and governments around the world who are on the front line working to contain this virus.

Whether it is buying, selling, leasing or property management, our entire team are still here to assist you, and we look forward to continuing to help make your property dreams come true.

Kind Regards,

Zoran Veleski

What not to do when working from home

This working from home malarky ain't for everyone. And there are definitely right ways and wrong ways to go about it.

Here's what not to do, under any circumstances, when it comes to dialling in a day's work from home. You can thank us later.

1. Eat all your snacks on day one

You hoofed it down to the supermarket once those government restrictions were read out, and – good news! – you managed to bag the last packet of Mini Eggs! You also stocked up on hot cross buns, splurged on a variety-pack of little packets of chips and bought all the Lindt balls. You're good to go, right?

Wrong! Don't be fooled into thinking your epic snack haul will last you through the next few weeks of working from home – you'll be lucky if they see you through the day, quite frankly.

2. Forget to claim offsets when it comes time to do your tax

You've set up your working from home space – time to get smart about what you can and can't claim as a legit expense. Head online to the ATO website for up-to-date information, get your facts straight – then proceed directly to Officeworks and breathe in the sweet, sweet smell of tax-deductible stationery!

You may also be able to claim a portion of your rent, electricity, heating and gas. But don't take our word for it – check with someone official. And keep those receipts!

3. Have booze in the background while video-conferencing

It's 5pm and you've just cracked your first post-work G&T. But what's that? Ah, bloody hell, it's your boss video-calling you! Doesn't he know you've already changed out of your 'Day PJs' into your 'Night PJs'? Nope. And he doesn't need to, either.

Hide that bottle of Four Pillars, pop on a work shirt over the top of your sloppy-joes and act semi-professional – he'll be none the wiser. If you're already three gins down, feel free to feign "internet issues" via a post-it note placed strategically over your computer's camera – what your boss can't see, he can't know about.

4. Allow your housemates to cameo in a towel during a Zoom chat

It's time to lock that bedroom door, house sharers! Especially if you're about to Zoom with your colleagues. No one wants to see Pete's big, hairy be-towelled frame lingering in the background. And trust us – he WILL find a way to saunter his way across the lounge just as your "circling back" to that very important talking point.

5. Forget to include your pets in that dial-up meeting

Pets, on the other hand, are perfectly permissible – nay, essential! – during a work video conference. A cute floofer of the cat, or dog variety is the absolute best way to distract your boss from the fact you've done absolutely Sweet Fanny Adams this week at work from home.

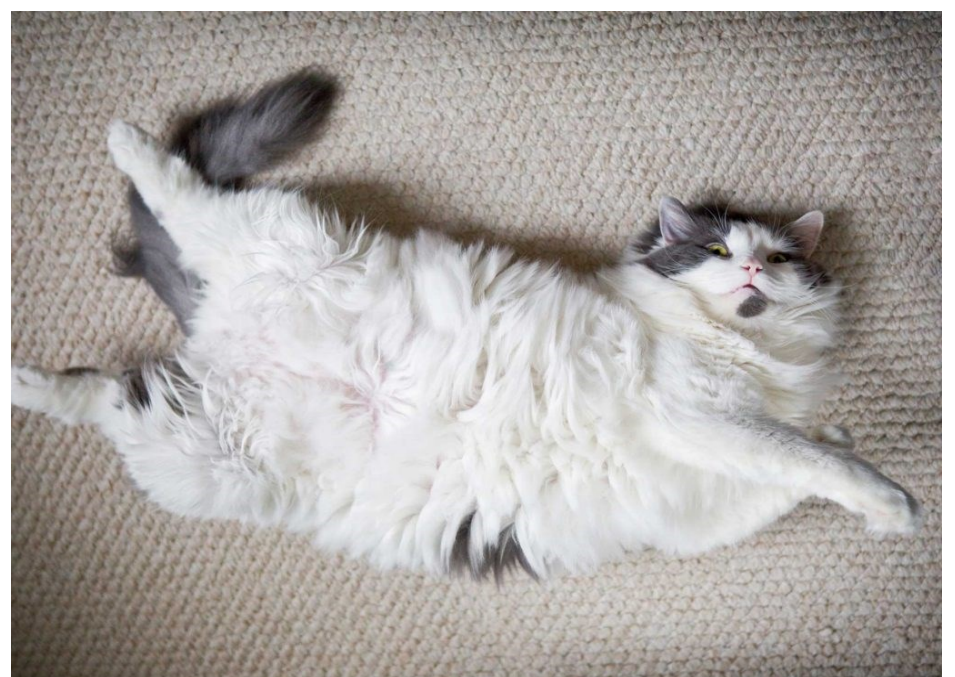

Don't have a pet? No stress! Lure next door's cat in with a tin of tuna.

6. Forget to move

This one might sound a bit strange, but now you're out of your daily routine, you may forget to, you know, actually move your body. "Going to work" may now be as simple as rolling over and clicking on that Google Hangouts link. But nice as a day lounging in your boudoir sounds, take time out to do at least 30 minutes of proper exercise.

There are stacks of great free online programs, but going for a walk around the block (practising good social distancing, of course), works just as well.

Move it or lose it, people!

What do I do?

The first step is to put your best offer forward to the property consultant. This offer is one that you believe is the correct value of the property, in accordance with other homes you have seen. From here, be prepared to negotiate. We suggest that placing a reasonable offer is a very good place to start sale proceedings. Once the offer has been submitted, our property consultant will do their foremost to negotiate a sale agreeable to both parties.

In the past, it was the seller's and agent's opinions that mattered; now it's your turn. You have a simple way of negotiating your dream home, which you would have previously missed.

HOW TO CALCULATE MONTHLY LOAN REPAYMENTS

Choose the ratio applying to the relevant interest rate and term of the loan. Then multiply this by the number of thousands of dollars required to be borrowed.

E.g. If your loan is for $265,000 and the interest rate is 6.50% over 25 years, then the following calculation will give you the monthly loan repayment.

265	x	6.75	=	$ 1,788.75
