ISSUE 611 Saturday 22nd October 2022

What's happening in Sydney this weekend!

Living for the weekend? In a town like Sydney we don't blame you. There are fun times to be had all over the city.

Stroll through Sculptures by the Sea!

Get those walking shoes ready – after two years of postponements, Sculpture by the Sea is returning to Bondi this year. The spectacular 2km Bondi to Tamarama coastal walk is set to be transformed once again with eye-catching art installations from October 21 to November 7, 2022. With over 100 artworks by Australian and international sculptors, the world's largest free-to-the-public outdoor sculpture exhibition will surprise and delight for it's 24th year, with approximately 450,000 visitors expected to attend over the three-week exhibition.

Sydney, it's time to get amongst it.

Kind Regards,

Zoran Veleski

How to protect your dogs & cats against paralysis ticks, according to Dr Katrina Warren

September marked the official start of tick season in Australia, and while I don't want to alarm you, it's important for dog and cat owners to be vigilant.

Tick season varies each year depending on weather patterns, but generally, peak season lasts from September until March.

Tick season is not to be taken lightly, as the consequences of paralysis ticks can include death – and talking to your vet about preparing a long-lasting protection plan is paramount to avoiding heartache later.

Paralysis ticks – Ixodes holocyclus – are unique to Australia's eastern seaboard, and are the single most dangerous parasite for dogs on the east coast, with one tick capable of causing paralysis or even death. A female tick injects toxins through their saliva into your pet's bloodstream when they bite your pet, which directly affects the nervous system, causing lower motor neuron paralysis.

Symptoms of paralysis ticks typically start to present as weakness in the hindquarters, which presents as wobbly legs – especially the back legs – and progresses to total paralysis across all four legs.

Other early symptoms include vomiting or loud and heavy breathing, coughing, heavy salivation or the appearance that your dog has something stuck in their throat.

Remove the ticks immediately as soon as you notice them, and search for more. Take your pet to the vet immediately even after removing the tick. (Getty Images/iStockphoto)

Inspect your furry friends daily for ticks, and if one is found, remove it immediately with a tick remover or tweezers. If your pet is showing any signs of paralysis, go straight to your vet as this is considered an emergency.

If a tick is found, try to keep your dog relaxed, and search for more ticks across their body. It's also important that after a tick is found, you don't offer your dog any food or water, as the toxins from a tick mean dogs can't protect their airways when they swallow, and as a result, food or water could go into their lungs. Do not apply topical chemicals to your pet's skin to try and kill the tick, as this could cause the tick to inject further toxins into your pet's bloodstream.

Cats are not exempt from being affected by paralysis ticks, though they do show more resistance to the tick's poison than dogs – nevertheless, the early symptoms are similar, and a vet should be contacted immediately once a tick is found and removed.

Cats can get tick bites too, and even though they show more resistance to the poison than dogs, it can still be fatal for them. (Getty Images/iStockphoto)

Signs and symptoms of paralysis ticks

- Early symptoms: Dilated pupils, weakness in back legs or sitting suddenly when they try to walk, loss of voice or barks and meows becoming softer or changing pitch, vomiting, especially several times a day with froth, loss of appetite.
- Later symptoms: Back legs become wobbly, breathing becomes louder and includes panting or grunting noises, moist coughs in dogs.
- Worsening symptoms: Pet can't stand, breathing becomes difficult or exaggerated, gagging, grunting or coughing becomes more frequent, gums become cold or blue-tinged.

What do I do?

The first step is to put your best offer forward to the property consultant. This offer is one that you believe is the correct value of the property, in accordance with other homes you have seen. From here, be prepared to negotiate. We suggest that placing a reasonable offer is a very good place to start sale proceedings. Once the offer has been submitted, our property consultant will do their foremost to negotiate a sale agreeable to both parties.

In the past, it was the seller's and agent's opinions that mattered; now it's your turn. You have a simple way of negotiating your dream home, which you would have previously missed.

HOW TO CALCULATE MONTHLY LOAN REPAYMENTS

Choose the ratio applying to the relevant interest rate and term of the loan. Then multiply this by the number of thousands of dollars required to be borrowed.

E.g. If your loan is for $265,000 and the interest rate is 6.50% over 25 years, then the following calculation will give you the monthly loan repayment.

265	x	6.75	=	$ 1,788.75
